The HoverCycle is a nimble single-person transport used by the Ascendancy military in their Special Forces units, such as the Hellfighter Commandos. Each cycle employs the same hover-sphere magnetic levitation technology as the MetaCar, and thus is highly maneuverable. They feature an onboard Atlas, two concealed forward-facing shred cannons, and more.
The MetaCar is a prototype vehicle designed by the Ascendancy. The only one of its type—it was recently stolen by Nick Morgan. With its nanite-enhanced exterior skin, the MetaCar transitions seamlessly between multiple transit modes such as hover, jet, submersible, and even a spacepod which can orbit. It’s also fitted with a concealed shred cannon turret and other gadgets.
The MetaCar is a prototype vehicle designed by the Ascendancy. The only one of its type—it was recently stolen by Nick Morgan. With its nanite-enhanced exterior skin, the MetaCar transitions seamlessly between multiple transport modes such as hover, jet, submersible, and even a space pod which can orbit. It’s also fitted with a concealed shred cannon turret and other gadgets.
The MetaCar is a prototype vehicle designed by the Ascendancy. The only one of its type—it was recently stolen by Nick Morgan. With its nanite-enhanced exterior skin, the MetaCar transitions seamlessly between multiple travel modes such as hover, jet, submersible, and even a spacepod which can orbit. It’s also fitted with a concealed shred cannon turret and other gadgets.
The MetaCar is a prototype vehicle designed by the Ascendancy. The only one of its type—it was recently stolen by Nick Morgan. With its nanite-enhanced exterior skin, the MetaCar transitions seamlessly between multiple transport modes such as hover, jet, submersible, and even a spacepod which can orbit. It’s also fitted with a concealed shred cannon turret and other gadgets.